Life is an Artistic Journey to be traveled with feelings of excitement and wonder. Paintings record what interested you along that journey. A painting is never finished; you just stop in interesting places during the development of that picture. Do the best you can in every phase of the process knowing that with rested eyes and a new day, be it years later, you may need to improve what you thought was finished.

Homework during these lessons is also a record of what colors you may develop using newly found medium. Be sure your work is complete and neat; experience tells me you will refer to these pages many times.

We know not what the future will ask of us therefore

Be prepared!
